

I am strongly against a high tower in the downtown core. The downtown core has worked so hard to revitalize itself with interesting businesses and with beautiful architecture; the city hall, court buildings and the Petrie renovation just to name a few. Allowing a high rise that is too tall and architecturally unappealing is a mistake. I would support more high rise condos slightly outside the core (where metal works and river mill are located).

I live downtown and have been considering moving due to the continued problem with the unhoused and the tent situation, and now the deteriorating downtown skyline adds to my concerns.

Sincerely

Joanne Baggio
